A Girl Named Zippy – By Haven Kimmel

Study Questions

Please answer the following questions thoroughly citing details from the novel. Each question should be answered in 7-10 sentences. Pay close attention to grammar, use of sophisticated vocabulary, and sentence structure. (200 points)

1. The introductory quote from Emerson asks, "Is there no event...which shall not, sooner or later, lose its adhesive, inert form?" Which portions of A Girl named Zippy do you perceive as being precisely accurate, and which ones seem slightly embellished by the process Emerson calls "soaring from our body into the empyrean"?
2. At first glance, A Girl named Zippy appears to be a collection of assorted scenes, almost like a scrapbook. Yet the chapters unfold as if they were part of a novel. What themes thread their way through the work as a whole? What recurring predicaments are resolved as Zippy gets older?
3. Consider Zippy's family: her gun-toting but sensitive dad, her bookish mother, her adored big brother, and her mercurial big sister. In what ways is the Jarvis family dynamic both typical and unusual?
4. Numerous memoirs have been published that expose deeply painful childhoods. Haven Kimmel alludes to a few dark aspects of life in Moreland, such as poverty, a lecherous teacher, and her father's gambling problem. How do Zippy's coping skills compare to those of other children such as Francie from A Tree Grows in Brooklyn, the Price sisters from The Poisonwood Bible, and the McCall brothers from Beach Music?
5. In light of the book's beginning, what is the significance of the story in the final chapter, in which Zippy receives a piano from Santa?" What do the closing sentences "Thank you for not losing faith" and "Thank you for being so brave tonight" reveal about Zippy and her parents?
6. Zippy's numerous pets include Sam the Pig, Speckles the Chicken, the dogs Kai and Tiger, a pony named Tim, the cats PeeDink and Smokey, and Skipper the Hamster. How does Haven Kimmel develop the animals as sympathetic characters or villains (such as Chanticleer, the abusive rooster)? How does a child's bond with animals differ from that of an adult? Which of Zippy's pet stories was the most memorable for you? What recurring predicaments are resolved as Zippy gets older?

7. Haven Kimmel introduces us to a slew of eccentric Moreland residents, from the grumpy drugstore owner to the postman who delivers only the mail he approves of. How do the various communities – big cities and small towns alike – define eccentricity? Were Moreland’s attempts at clean living successful? How does Moreland compare to your town?
8. Does Haven Kimmel seem to approve or disapprove of her upbringing?
9. Zippy often discusses religion. How does her mother’s Quaker community differ from her father’s “church in the woods”? Is he really as godless as his wife thinks he is?
10. The chapter entitled “The World of Ideas” introduces us to Zippy’s maternal grandmother, described as “a moneyed old woman in a small, depressed city.” What insight does this section give us into Zippy’s mother, who was raised in an environment that was very different from Zippy’s?
11. How was Zippy changed by her friendship with Dana; whose parents worked in a factory, were atheists, and seemed uninterested in their child?
12. Zippy has an unusual bond with Julie, her snaggletoothed friend. How do you suppose Zippy was able to interpret Julie’s silence, even over the phone? Why did Julie hit Zippy three times in the chapter of the same name?
13. Petey was Zippy’s nemesis, abusing animals and even raising a carnivorous rabbit. Discuss the grade-school bullies in your past. What sort of teenagers have they become?
14. What is it about Haven Kimmel’s tone that makes even everyday events seem compelling? How does she balance humor and poignancy?
15. Were the Jarvises poor?
